

Plagues and People:

Epidemics, Pandemics and the Current “Ebola Crisis.”

Join us for a roundtable discussion which examines the current “Ebola Crisis” from a variety of viewpoints. Faculty from natural sciences, nursing, history, anthropology and political science will examine epidemics, past and present, their impact, as well as popular and governmental reactions to the spread of disease and its containment.

When: Wednesday, October 29th,
3-5pm
Where: FS 303

Sponsored by the Department of History,
College of Humanities and Social Sciences.
All students, faculty and staff are welcome.
Contact Dr. Allison J. Gough for more information agough@hpu.edu

